A palatial Upper East Side penthouse that, until recently, housed Mets star pitcher Taijuan Walker is on the market for $14.2 million. It had been asking $39,000 a month when Walker was renting it. The penthouse asking price is just a tad more than the $14.1 million the seller, artificial intelligence expert Adrian Weller — a former fixed income pro at Goldman Sachs, Salomon Brothers and Citadel — paid for it back in 2008, according to property records.

The penthouse is in a seven-story, limestone-clad boutique condo converted from a former garage.

The spread, at 157 E. 84th St, is 6,700 square feet.

There’s also an adjacent guest bedroom/library with an additional fireplace.

A chef’s kitchen off the dining area and three bedrooms complete this level, including a main bedroom suite with access to two balconies, a seating area and ensuite bathrooms.

On the upper level there's a welcoming media room.

Upstairs, there's a media room with radiant heated floors and a gas-burning fireplace.

A fifth bedroom comes with lots of storage and a windowed ensuite bathroom with radiant heated floors.

There's nearly 3,000 square feet of outdoor space.

The penthouse also features a private rooftop terrace, ideal for entertaining.

Priyanka Chopra once lived in the building before she married singer Nick Jonas.

Building amenities include a gym, a doorman and a common rooftop deck.

The listing broker is Loy Carlos, of Serhant.
